Improvisational Bookmaking

a one day workshop

taught by visual artist Angela Driscoll

Date: Saturday September 27th, 2008, 9:30–4:00 p.m.

Location: A Studio in the Woods on the West Bank, Lower Coast Algiers
13401 River Road, New Orleans

Cost: $100, lunch and supplies included*

How does art evolve from an intuitive and unscripted place? This workshop's focus will be on how to approach bookbinding with spontaneity and playfulness. We will make several sample blank books to learn different non-adhesive binding techniques. Writing exercises will help us create unscripted texts for the "guts" of the book. By using these elements to react intuitively to the materials, we will make our very own improvised artist book.

 All supplies are included in workshop fees although you are encouraged to bring any interesting paper, glassine, envelopes, small objects, buttons, photographs, found or photocopied material, etc. to personalize your piece.*

Angela Driscoll received her BA in Visual Arts from Loyola University New Orleans, and her MFA in Book Arts/Printmaking from The University of the Arts in Philadelphia. Her interest in book arts has focused her attention on combining text and imagery in non-linear and fragmented narratives. She lives and works in New Orleans, where she currently teaches at Loyola University New Orleans.

A Studio in the Woods, located in Lower Coast Algiers is a program of Tulane University dedicated to preserving the bottomland hardwood forest and providing within it a peaceful retreat where visual, literary, and performing artists can work uninterrupted. The only live-in artists' retreat in the Deep South, A Studio in the Woods fosters both environmental preservation and the creative work of artists of all ages.
